

Abstract of the Disclosure

An apparatus and method for a message card having a memory bearing a message for substitution in lieu of, for example, a caller ID value of a phone at which the message card is used. The apparatus and method also have applicability outside the telephony arena, such as, for example, in internet or instant messaging applications.

substitution in lieu of, for example, a caller ID value of a phone at which the message card is used.

The apparatus and method also have applicability outside the telephony arena, such as, for example, in internet or instant messaging applications.

in internet or instant messaging applications.

[illegible]